

This Privacy and Data Protection Policy is effective January 1, 2020.

TRANSATLANTIC HOLDINGS, INC.

GLOBAL INSURANCE AND REINSURANCE PRIVACY & DATA PROTECTION POLICY

1. What We Do

Transatlantic Holdings, Inc., its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates (collectively referred to as “TransRe”), recognize the importance of effective and meaningful privacy protections when it collects, uses, and discloses Personal Information (as described below). We are in the business of providing reinsurance to insurance companies. Certain of our subsidiaries provide insurance to companies and individuals. In providing reinsurance services to meet the needs of our business partners, we collect information from them about their insureds to both underwrite reinsurance policies and to settle related claims. We work extensively with reinsurance brokers whose role is to help connect insurance companies with reinsurers for added reinsurance coverage to meet their insurance needs.

If you are a policyholder of Calpe Insurance Company Limited (“Calpe”), or are insured under, or have made a claim in connection with, a policy issued by Calpe, you can find a summary of Calpe’s use of information below in the addendum.

If you are a policyholder of Fair American Insurance and Reinsurance Company (“FAIRCO”) and Fair American Select Insurance Company (“FASIC”), you can find a summary of each company’s use of information below in the addendum. As part of our business model, we make an ongoing effort to safeguard and protect nonpublic information whether it is nonpublic information, personally identifiable information, personal health information or confidential business information. The information of our business partners and employees is very important to us, we do not sell confidential business or personally identifiable information. We only use, disclose, or share personal or confidential business information for business purposes as described in this policy. This policy applies to all TransRe business entities, brands and operations globally, including joint ventures and partnerships, to TransRe.com, and to TransRe subsidiary websites.

2. What Data We Collect

We collect information when a business partner applies for a reinsurance policy. This generally includes company name, address and other relevant underwriting application information that is provided to us. Application and related claim information is used to evaluate underwriting risk, to formulate policy and pricing terms, and to assist in claims handling.

Some of the information collected may, from time to time, depending on the business requirements, fall into what is deemed “Personal Information” or “PI” or “Nonpublic Information” or “NI” which is data that identifies or has the potential to directly or indirectly identify a person taken alone or in combination with other information (or any equivalent definition under applicable law). Such data may include an individual’s name, address, Social Security or other government issued identification number, e-mail address, date of birth, or financial account numbers. We also safeguard confidential business information that is provided to us by our business partners such as insurance companies and insurance brokers as to their own insurance business practices and related losses when pertinent. At the end of the underwriting application process we are required by our regulators to also retain applicant information for five (5) years even if the application is denied.

In working with our (re)insureds in the underwriting process, we may collect information about them and/or their business(es) relevant to policy requirements and coverage, risks associated with it and such things as pricing, claim history, and license status. This may include Personal Information. We may also ask for information concerning past claims by patients, clients or licensing bodies. In the event of a claim or anticipated claim, we collect related claim information to help evaluate and complete the claims process. This may include information as to the nature of the claim, the parties involved, and documentation to support the underlying claim.

In some instances, claim information may be medical or health-related information, also referred to as Protected Health Information (“PHI”), which is regulated and protected under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (“HIPAA”). As such, whether it is PHI claim information or Nonpublic Information (“NI”) or Personally Identifiable Information (“PII”), it is information that may be regulated and protected by Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (“HIPAA”), the New York Department of Financial Services (“NY DFS”), the Fair Credit Reporting Act (“FCRA”) or other Global or U.S. Privacy and Information Security Laws.

TransRe may use PI or NI in a variety of ways, including:

- Administrative Purposes. TransRe may use PI or NI for its administrative purposes, including, without limitation, to: (a) perform internal quality control; (b) verify identity; (c) send communications regarding our website, programs or services, customer accounts, or any changes to any policy or terms of service; (d) process payments; (e) prevent potentially prohibited or illegal activities; and (f) enforce our website’s Terms & Conditions.
- Marketing Products and Services. TransRe may use PI to provide materials about offers, products and services offered by us, including new content or services on TransRe’s Websites. TransRe may provide these materials by phone, postal mail, facsimile or email, as permitted by applicable law. To opt out of the use of PI for such purposes, please contact TransRe as further described below.
- Research and Development. TransRe may use PI to create non-identifiable information that we may use alone or in the aggregate with information obtained from other sources, in order to help us to optimally deliver our existing products and services or develop new products, processes and services.
- Pseudonymous Data. TransRe may use and share anonymized or aggregated information within the TransRe group of companies or with third parties for public health, research, analytics and any other legally permissible purposes.
- Other Uses. TransRe may use PI or NI for other purposes disclosed at the time PI or NI is provided to TransRe or with consent.

More information about how TransRe, and other companies involved with the provision of (re)insurance, may process information is included in the London Market Core Uses Information Notice available at <https://www.londonmarketgroup.co.uk/gdpr>. The London Market Notice was purposely developed to assist policyholders in understanding how insurance companies, brokers, market participants and others involved in providing you with insurance and settling your claims may market, collect, process and use your Personal Information.

If you have any questions or concerns about how Personal Information is handled or if you would like to exercise your rights, you should contact the person or entity (i.e., the data controller or business) who has contracted with us. In some cases, our customers may also control the Personal Information and we will provide assistance to our customers to address any concerns you may have, in accordance with the terms of our contract with them.

3. Website Specific Data

One area in which we may also collect information differently than from the underwriting process is the TransRe website (the “Website”). We may collect Personal Information if it is submitted through the Website. Website information may also be collected automatically through the use of cookies, web beacons, web server logs and other means, as described below. This information may include usage data, such as the number of unique visitors, what pages are visited most often, and the navigation preferences and characteristics of web visitors.

Website Cookies

Websites use cookies for various reasons. We may use cookies to tell us whether anyone has ever visited our Website before or if they are a new visitor, and to help us understand what areas of the Website are found most interesting. Cookies may enhance Website experience by saving preferences and passwords so one does not have to re-enter information each time visiting the Website. Cookies, however, are not used to identify or to collect Personal Information.

Cookies may be accepted or declined. While most Web browsers automatically accept cookies, browser settings can be modified to decline cookies. However, disabled cookies may limit functionality of some Website features. Cookies can be deleted from the hard drive at any time by clicking on the Privacy or History tab typically found on the Settings or Options menu in the internet browser. However, please also be advised that cookies may be necessary to provide access to much of the content and many of the features of TransRe’s Website.

Web Beacons

Web beacons may also be used which are transparent pixel images that are used to collect information about Website usage, email response and tracking. A web beacon can collect information such as the Internet Protocol (“IP”) address of the computer that downloaded the page on which the tag appears; the URL of the page on which the beacon appears; the time the page containing the beacon was viewed; the browser type and language; the device type; geographic location; and the identification number of any cookie on the computer previously placed by that server.

Web Server Logs

Certain information is gathered automatically and stored in web server logs for various reasons including administering the site, analyzing trends and tracking usage. This information does not identify individual users. This information may include the following: Internet protocol (IP) address; type of browser, computer and operating system, browser plug-ins, height and width, Internet Service Provider (ISP), search engines, and keywords used to find our site; pages viewed within our site; city, state or country from which our site was accessed, Web pages linked to our site from, date and time of visit, pages viewed on our site and other clickstream data.

This site may use Google Analytics, a website analytics service provided by Google, Inc. Google Analytics uses cookies to help Website owners understand how visitors interact with the Website. Google uses this information to evaluate your use of the Website, compile reports for website operators and provide other services related to website activity and internet usage. You may view the Google privacy policy at <http://www.google.com/intl/en/analytics/privacyoverview.html>.

You can opt out of Google's collection and processing of data generated by your use of the website by going to <http://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout>.

The Website is not directed to and will not knowingly collect Personal Information from children under the age of thirteen (13) without their parents' consent.

4. Information from Third Party Sources

TransRe may collect information from Third-Party sources to supplement information that we collect. This supplemental information allows us to verify information that is provided to TransRe and to enhance our ability to provide you with information about our business, products and services. TransRe's agreements with these Third Party-sources typically limit how TransRe may use this supplemental information.

5. Who Sees Your Data

TransRe application or other business information may be shared with business contacts such as program administrators, managing general agents, insurance brokers, actuaries, accountants, reinsurers and reinsurance brokers, application or IT services providers, and legal counsel to facilitate TransRe business objectives. Regulators may also view application or other business information in carrying out their regulatory or legal duties. Other information may be used for routine business activities, including evaluating and underwriting policies, auditing, establishing pricing and other underwriting criteria, evaluating, processing, paying or rejecting claims, and other purposes authorized by law.

We may also share Personal Information with other companies or individuals outside of TransRe for the following limited purposes: (a) satisfy any applicable law, regulation, legal process or enforceable governmental request, (b) enforce applicable Terms of Service, contracts, or policies, including investigation of potential violations or breaches thereof, (c) detect, prevent, or otherwise address fraud, security or technical issues, or (d) protect against imminent harm to the rights, property or safety of its users, or the public as required or permitted by law.

If TransRe becomes involved in a merger, acquisition, or any form of sale of some or all of its assets, it will provide notice before Personal Information is transferred and subject to a new privacy policy different from this policy. We may also from time to time use or share aggregated or de-identified nonpublic business or Personal Information for business purposes with business partners.

6. Information Security

TransRe uses information security policies that are designed to protect and secure the confidentiality and integrity of its business data whether it is nonpublic information, protected health information or confidential business information. And, although administrative, technical and physical safeguards are in place, important regulatory concerns surround the secure use of the Internet, unforeseen system vulnerabilities, social engineering risks and the possibility of third-party negligence or malfeasance. These added risks are why TransRe cannot guarantee that information will always remain absolutely confidential at all times or warrant the security of any information transmitted to TransRe, and individuals do so at your own risk.

So as noted even though we take precautions to secure our business partners' information and apply commercially reasonable and appropriate safeguards we cannot guarantee information cybersecurity. To the extent you or others in your company access information on TransRe systems through the use of a password, we ask that you keep your password confidential and secure because we cannot be responsible for acts resulting from the unauthorized use of your password or compromises to the security of your computers, networks or systems.

7. Data Collection Principle Based Practices

TransRe adheres to US and EU Data Protection principles as well as other applicable data protection regulations that apply to TransRe's global business operations. We extend these practices to our business partner data collection procedures worldwide except where local requirements warrant modification or where adherence may be limited in order to comply with law enforcement, public, interest or national security. The following principles are part of TransRe's privacy and information cyber security business practices:

- Fair Use - We collect, use or disclose Personal Information by lawful, fair, open and transparent means in accordance with applicable laws in observation of the legal rights of individuals.
- Notice - Due to the nature of our reinsurance business our business partners provide their privacy policy to their insureds and we rely on their having provided such notice. For our subsidiaries that offer direct insurance we provide a privacy data usage notice to our insureds through agents and post the notice on our website. TransRe, as mentioned previously in this statement, does not sell Personal Information to third parties nor does it share Personal Information with third parties except for legitimate business purposes or when required to by law.
- Choice - When Personal Information is collected by TransRe's business partners and then transferred to TransRe we again rely on our business partners to have obtained the necessary consent. If TransRe is dealing directly with individuals for some reason in a separate legal relationship it provides sufficient information to allow the individual to make an informed decision and allows them to later withdraw their consent if not prohibited by other overriding legal requirements.

TransRe uses Personal Information in accordance with the purpose for which it was first collected and for ongoing related legitimate business purposes. TransRe obtains new explicit consent if the data is to be used for new or other purposes than those covered by the initial consent. In circumstances where we are directly collecting Sensitive Personal Information or Special Category Personal Data, we obtain explicit affirmative express consent by the individual for use, retention, access, collection or sharing.

- Integrity - TransRe takes reasonable steps to ensure that Personal Information collected, used or disclosed is accurate, up-to-date, complete, reliable and relevant to the purposes for which it is used or disclosed.

- Limited Use - TransRe limits the collection of Personal Information to that which is relevant and purposeful to the reason collected. TransRe again only uses Personal Information in accordance with its original purpose and, when required by law, obtains prior explicit consent for new uses not covered by the relevant privacy notice.
- Limited Retention - TransRe retains Personal Information for as long as reasonably required to serve TransRe's legitimate business needs. Personal Information that is no longer needed for business purposes is deleted, destroyed or de-identified and/or aggregated if retained.
- Access and Correction - Upon written request, Individuals may seek confirmation regarding whether TransRe is processing Personal Information about you, request access to Personal Information, and ask that we correct, amend or delete Personal Information where it is inaccurate or has been processed in violation of a Data Transfer Agreement. Where otherwise permitted by applicable law, you may use any of the methods set out in the Redress/Compliance and Accountability section of this Privacy Policy to request access to, receive, make portable, restrict processing, seek rectification or request erasure of Personal Information held about by TransRe. Such requests will be processed in line with local laws. Although TransRe makes good faith efforts to provide individuals with access to their PI, there may be circumstances in which TransRe is unable to provide access, including but not limited to: where the information contains legal privilege, would compromise others' privacy or other legitimate rights, where the burden or expense of providing access would be disproportionate to the risks to the individual's privacy in the case in question, where it is commercially proprietary, or where such access would be inappropriate. In the event an individual establishes that their Personal Information is inaccurate or incorrect, TransRe will endeavor to promptly correct the Personal Information.
- Security - TransRe takes reasonable precautions designed to protect Personal Information under its control or in its possession against loss, theft, misuse, unauthorized access, disclosure, modification, alteration or destruction. These precautions include administrative, technical, physical and organizational measures appropriate to the risks and are designed to include such things as password protections, encryption and access control. (See 6. Information Security section above)
- Third Parties - TransRe Personal Information that is accessed by, or shared with, third-parties, requires that third parties expressly contract in writing that they provide the same or similar data protection, confidentiality and security standards as TransRe.
- Training and Compliance - TransRe provides training to employees on how to appropriately collect, use or access Personal Information. Employee training and education is provided on an ongoing basis to ensure employees regularly learn how to use and secure Personal Information. Amendments to this Policy will be effective when published on the TransRe Website.

8. Transfer of Information to the United States

TransRe is an international reinsurance organization headquartered in the United States with operations worldwide. Our Website is operated in the United States so if you are located outside of the United States, please be aware that information we collect directly from you or that we receive indirectly from our clients or other third parties, including Personal Information, will be transferred to, and processed, stored and used in the United States. The data protection laws in the United States may differ from those of the country in which you are located, and your Personal Information may be subject to access requests from governments, courts, or law enforcement in the United States according to laws of the United States. For information we receive indirectly (e.g., from clients), contract terms define our protection standards. When you provide information directly to TransRe or use our Website you consent to the transfer, processing, usage, sharing and storage of your information, including Personal Information, in the United States as set forth in this Privacy Policy.

9. California Privacy Rights

California law permits users who are California residents to request and obtain from us once a year, free of charge, a list of the Third Parties to whom we have disclosed their Personal Information (if any) for their direct marketing purposes in the prior calendar year, as well as the type of Personal Information disclosed to those parties.

10. Do Not Track

Do Not Track (“DNT”) is a privacy preference setting that users can enable in certain web browsers. DNT is a way for users to inform websites and services that they do not want certain information about their webpage visits collected over time and across websites or online services. Please be advised that TransRe does not respond to or honor DNT signals or similar mechanisms transmitted by web browsers.

11. Links to Third Party Websites and Other Company’s Privacy Policies

Please note that our Websites may contain links to other websites for your convenience and information. TransRe does not control Third-Party websites or their privacy practices, which may differ from those set out in this Privacy Policy. TransRe does not endorse or make any representations about Third-Party websites. Any Personal Information you choose to give to unrelated Third Parties is not covered by this Privacy Policy. TransRe encourages you to review the privacy policy of any company or website before submitting your Personal Information. Some Third Parties may choose to share their users’ Personal Information with TransRe; that sharing is governed by that company’s privacy policy, not this Privacy Policy.

12. Changes to Our Privacy Policy

If material changes are made to our Privacy Policy, we will post them to the privacy policy section of our Website. If you have any questions about this Policy, please feel free to contact us through our Website’s contact page or at the address below. TransRe encourages you to review this Privacy Policy periodically to be informed regarding how TransRe is using and protecting your information and to be aware of any policy changes. Your continued relationship with TransRe after the posting or notice of any amended Privacy Policy shall constitute your agreement to be bound by any such changes. Any changes to this Privacy Policy take effect immediately after being posted or otherwise provided by TransRe.

Your Rights

In addition to the rights described in the Policy, you may also have the following right against TransRe with regard to your Personal Information:

- Right to give instructions concerning the use of your Personal Information after your death.

If you want to make use of your aforementioned rights, please contact the Chief Privacy Officer using the contact information set out below in the Privacy Policy. Please note that any such communication must be in writing.

Calpe Insurance Company Privacy Data Protection Policy Addendum

What We Do

Calpe Insurance Company Limited (“Calpe”), is a wholly owned subsidiary of Transatlantic Reinsurance Company (“TransRe”) engaged in the business of providing insurance coverage through Co-Insurers or Managing General Agents (“MGAs”).

Calpe as a subsidiary of TransRe is included in the scope of the Transatlantic Holdings Inc. Global Insurance and Reinsurance Privacy & Data Protection Policy.

What Data We and Others Collect

Calpe’s Co-Insurers, MGAs and/or their agents are the preliminary point of contact for issuing a Calpe insurance policy and managing any claims under a policy and are the initial data controller with respect to any information collected by them in order to do so. You can contact their data protection officer to advise you on the other insurance market related participants with whom they have shared or may share your Personal Information.

Calpe will collect and use information about you, such as your name and contact details, as well as more sensitive information (for example about your health) for the following purposes: (i) onboarding you as a client (including internal compliance, anti-money laundering and fraud checks); (ii) evaluating risks and matching them to appropriate insurance cover (including risk modelling and profiling on a non-attributed aggregated basis against similar information provided by other clients); (iii) general client care and administrative purposes; (iv) receiving and recovering payments due to Calpe; (v) assisting in the management of claims; (vi) internal records keeping and building databases for use by Calpe, its co-insurers and MGAs; and (vii) in connection with a sale or re-organisation of our business. Although at present, Calpe does not use your information for marketing purposes it may as permitted under the law.

Calpe does not sell your information to third parties or share it with any third parties for any other purpose than business purposes. Calpe may pass your information to third parties such as reinsurers, claims and loss adjusters, our affiliates and to certain regulatory bodies who may require your information themselves for the purposes referred to above. Calpe may also pass your information to third party agents who handle it on our behalf. These third parties are subject to obligations to protect your information but may be located in countries that have less robust data protection laws than those of your country.

Use of Personal Information you must consent to: Calpe may need to collect information about you that is sensitive (for example, information about your health or any criminal convictions). Where this is required, your consent to this processing is necessary for Calpe to provide you with the relevant services. Although you may withdraw your consent at any time, if you do, Calpe may be unable to continue to provide services to you, and this may mean that Calpe is unable to process your enquiry or claim or that your insurance coverage will stop.

For more detail about how Calpe processes and other companies involved in the provision of your insurance or the processing of a claim may use your information and how you may exercise your rights in respect of that information, please refer to the LMA Insurance Market Personal Data Uses Notice described in the Transatlantic Holdings Inc. Global Insurance and Reinsurance Privacy & Data Protection Policy or email Privacy@TransRe.com.

Fair American Insurance and Reinsurance Company & Fair American Select Insurance Company Data Protection Policy Addendum

What We Do

Fair American Insurance and Reinsurance Company (“FAIRCO”) and Fair American Select Insurance Company (“FASIC”) are wholly owned subsidiaries of Transatlantic Reinsurance Company (“TransRe”) engaged in the business of providing insurance.

FAIRCO and FASIC are both subsidiaries of TransRe and included in the scope of the Transatlantic Holdings Inc. Global Insurance and Reinsurance Privacy & Data Protection Policy.

In providing services to meet insurance needs, FAIRCO and FASIC collect information about you, your business and, if a claim is filed, your business activity, patients, or clients. We make it a priority to safeguard and protect personally identifiable information, personal health information and confidential information. FAIRCO and FASIC will not voluntarily disclose, share or otherwise use this type of information except as outlined in this Privacy Policy.

What Data Do We Collect?

We collect information when an insured applies for a policy, including name, address and other relevant application information that the applicant voluntarily provides to us. Application and claim information is used to evaluate underwriting risk, to formulate policy terms, and to assist in claims handling. In addition, we may collect information about payment history and methods, billing, accounting, and other similar information.

Information collected in connection with being an insured includes information about the type of business in which the insured is involved relevant to the policy and coverage, including information about such things as training, credentials, work history, and license status. In some instances a credit check may be conducted on the applicant’s credit history. We may also ask for information concerning past claims by patients, clients or licensing bodies. In the event of a claim or anticipated claim, we collect related claim information to help evaluate and complete the claims process. This may include information as to the nature of the claim, the parties involved, and documentation that supports the underlying claim.

Sometimes the claims information will be medical or health related, also referred to as Protected Health Information (“PHI”), which is regulated and protected under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (“HIPAA”). As such, whether it is PHI claim information or Nonpublic Information (“NI”) or Personally Identifiable Information (“PII”), it is information that may be regulated and protected by HIPAA, the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (“GLBA”), the New York Department of Financial Services (“NY DFS”), Cybersecurity Regulation, the Fair Credit Reporting Act (“FCRA) or other U.S. related Privacy and Information Security Laws and which we only share with entities that agree to protect the privacy and security of such data as required by law.

How We Use This Data

Application or other business information may be shared with business contacts such as program administrators, managing general agents, insurance brokers, actuaries, accountants, reinsurers and reinsurance brokers and legal counsel to facilitate FAIRCO’s or FASIC’s business objectives. Regulators may also view application or other business information in carrying out their regulatory responsibilities. Other information may be used in furtherance of FAIRCO's or FASIC's routine business activities, including evaluating and underwriting policies, auditing, establishing pricing and other underwriting criteria, evaluating, processing, paying or rejecting claims, and other purposes authorized by law.
